Praise for
Professional ASP.NET 3.5
In C# and VB

“Bill, Scott and Devin are long-time ASP.NET experts, and the authors of several best selling ASP.NET and .NET books. This latest book is outstanding and provides an excellent end-to-end resource for almost all things ASP.NET related... The book is very well organized, with a nice balance of text, code samples, and screen-shots... All in all, a great book and a fantastic addition to any ASP.NET developer’s library.”

Scott Guthrie,
Microsoft Corporation,
Vice President -- .NET Developer Division

“If there’s one book to own on ASP.NET 3.5 this is it!”

Rob Zelt,
President of INETA,
Microsoft ASP.NET MVP

“I’ve got the ASP.NET 2.0 version of this book (both the original and special edition versions) and all of the strengths still hold: It still walks you through all of the common (and some of the uncommon) usage for ASP.NET and provides great examples and code snippets to illustrate points. I’m not an ASP.NET newbie and I still find myself referring to the book from time to time...”

Travis Illig

“These 3 authors and their editors delivered a book the ASP.net developer will find invaluable, and help them write better code, solve tougher problems, and elegantly understand and apply quite a bit of the richness the Framework offers in real world ASP.net web site building and maintenance. Bravo, Bravissimo!”

Charles M. Carroll

About the Authors

Bill Evjen is an active proponent of .NET technologies and community-based learning initiatives for .NET. He has been actively involved with .NET since the first bits were released in 2000. In the same year, Bill founded the St. Louis .NET User Group (www.stlnet.org), one of the world’s first such groups. Bill is also the founder and former executive director of the International .NET Association (www.ineta.org), which represents more than 500,000 members worldwide.

Based in St. Louis, Missouri, USA, Bill is an acclaimed author and speaker on ASP.NET and XML Web Services. He has authored or co-authored more than fifteen books including Professional C# 2008, Professional VB 2008, ASP.NET Professional Secrets, XML Web Services for ASP.NET, and Web Services Enhancements: Understanding the WSE for Enterprise Applications (all published by Wiley Publishing, Inc.). In addition to writing, Bill is a speaker at numerous conferences, including DevConnections, VSLive, and TechEd. Along with these items, Bill works closely with Microsoft as a Microsoft Regional Director and an MVP. Bill is the Global Head of Platform Architecture for Lipper (www.lipperweb.com), as part of Thomson Reuters, the international news and financial services company. He graduated from Western Washington University in Bellingham, Washington, with a Russian language degree. When he isn’t tinkering on the computer, he can usually be found at his summer house in Toivakka, Finland. You can reach Bill at bill.evjen.public@gmail.com

Scott Hanselman works for Microsoft as a Senior Program Manager in the Developer Division, aiming to spread the good word about developing software, most often on the Microsoft stack. Before this he worked in eFinance for 6+ years and before that he was a Principal Consultant at a Microsoft Partner for nearly 7 years. He was also involved in a few things like the MVP and RD programs and will speak about computers (and other passions) whenever someone will listen to him. He blogs at http://www.hanselman.com and podcasts at http://www.hanselminutes.com and contributes to http://www.asp.net, http://www.windowsclient.net, and http://www.silverlight.net.

Devin Rader is a Product Manager on the Infragistics Web Client team, responsible for leading the creation of Infragistics ASP.NET and Silverlight products. Devin is also an active proponent and member of the .NET developer community, being a co-founder of the St. Louis .NET User Group, an active member of the New Jersey .NET User Group, a former board member of the International .NET Association (INETA), and a regular speaker at user groups. He is also a contributing author on the Wrox title Silverlight 1.0 and a technical editor for several other Wrox publications and has written columns for ASP.NET Pro magazine, as well as .NET technology articles for MSDN Online. You can find more of Devin’s musings at www.geekswithblogs.com/devin.

Acknowledgments

I have said it before and I’ll say it again: Writing a book may seem like the greatest of solo endeavors, but it requires a large team of people working together to get technical books out the door — and this book is no exception. First and foremost, I would like to thank Jim Minatel of Wrox for giving me the opportunity to write the original ASP.NET book, which then led to this special edition. There is nothing better than getting the opportunity to write about your favorite topic for the world’s best publisher!

Besides Jim, I worked with Adaobi Obi Tulton on the first edition and then Lori Cerreto as development editor and Nancy Rapoport as copy editor on this SP1 Edition. Without their efforts, this book would not have happened.

I worked closely with Scott Hanselman and Devin Rader on the original edition of this book, and these guys deserve a lot of thanks. I appreciate your help (and Devin, I appreciate the new appendix for this edition) and advice throughout the process. Thanks guys!

Finally, thanks to my entire family. Book writing is a devil in disguise as it is something that I love to do but at the same time, takes way too much time away from my family. Thanks to my family for putting up with this and for helping me get these books out the door. I love you all.
